"Never doubt that a small group of committed citizens can change the world; indeed it is the only thing that ever has."

—Margaret Mead

www.fingerprintsstmuseum.com
Define target audiences

Identify key individuals and organizations

Design strategies for engaging partners

Identify roles for partners and assign responsibilities

Establish formal partnership agreements where appropriate

Develop accountability and evaluation plans

Develop a communication vehicle to highlight partner activities

Reassess and evaluate partner involvement and satisfaction

www.fingerprintsmuseum.com
There is strength in numbers—community input does not burden, but strengthens, the planning process.

Community partners can:

- Advocate for the goals and objectives of the event in the community and recruit other partners
- Seek contribution of particular skills and talents
- Help monitor progress and achieve objectives

www.fingerprintsmusem.com
Be inclusive, not exclusive
(Don’t invite just your friends!)

Strive for broad representation, and regularly assess gaps.
Identify individuals and organizations diverse perspectives.

Look for partners who have a stake in safe communities and will help achieve objectives.

www.fingerprintsmuseum.com
Create and define useful roles for partners

Confirm commitments—in writing where possible
Give credit where credit is due
Accept that some partners will have different levels of commitment

www.fingerprintsмuseм.com
Nobody likes to be a rubber stamp
Provide a continual feedback mechanism and consider all feedback received
Report back to partners how their comments were addressed
Give people a voice as priorities are set
Ensure that groups have options and understand their implications before making big decisions
Strive to understand all parties’ concerns and perspectives
Allow time for meaningful discussion
Establish ground rules that are fair to all
Establish partners’ sense of ownership of the process
Provide a continual feedback mechanism and consider all feedback received

Nobody likes to be a rubber stamp
www.fingerprintsmuseum.com
Don’t just meet for the sake of meeting

Be clear about the purpose and desired results of meetings
Choose an effective facilitator (not always the chair)
Show respect for other people’s time
Plan the meeting from the participants’ perspective

www.fingerprintsmuseum.com
Find creative and flexible ways to engage partners and community members

Consider rotating meeting places and times to accommodate different schedules and give participants a chance to see other venues.

Offer meeting options that accommodate different preferences and levels of comfort with groups, such as: informal discussions, conference calls, focus groups, independent work groups, and small breakout groups.

Use email, texting, and dedicated web sites to communicate.

www.fingerprintsmuseum.com